

PENETRATION

A band of Tomorrow?

I certainly am not really qualified to write a report on this concert, since I spent most of the time:

- i) Holding down a pissed skinhead.
- ii) Holding off the masses at the front of the stage.

However, the Magnets, the support arrived at short notice and played a brief, but good, set of down-to-earth unashamed Punk, and they're a pretty good band but small league, I think!

Penetration followed swiftly after the Magnets' act was curtailed by some other prat chucking a load of beer over the guitarist, rendering his mike-stand live!

The music Penetration punched out was electric and Pauline on vocals pranced up and down in the true tradition of Souixsie Sue, of the Banshees fame.

The audience reacted in accordance with the music, and the stewards (who must be praised - well done Tom - for their patience and stamina in doing a pretty awful job) spent a back-breaking hour and 20 holding a large crowd back from the stage.

For all the good music and atmosphere, the band, I think, were a little disappointed with the gig, the crowd problems seeming to mar the occasion a bit for them.

However, after the concert I recorded an interview with the band, down at URB and this will be broadcast in the next week or so, listen out for it - for Back to the concert. It was enjoyed by all who went and, bar Wilko Johnson, was probably one of the best bands here so far this term!

Pred Pursers' lead riffs complemented by some great bass work by Robert Blamire, and, of course, Pauline's incredible, piercing voice made this concert for the audience, not forgetting the rhythm from Neale Floyd on guitar and Gary Small on drums.

TUITION FEES FOR REPEAT STUDENTS

During March and May of this year Senate reconsidered their policy towards tuition fees for 1978/9. The case that immediately springs to light is that of "repeating" students. It was passed by Senate/S.U. and Council committees under pressure from students and after extensive negotiations with Senate/S.U. Committee, that "repeating" students should pay a special fee of £50.

formality or perhaps the University Senate is simply trying to provide another dispute - it would appear so. In any event it is equally clear that the S.U. will stand by its policy passed at successive UGMs attended by over 1000 members and never overturned that these fees for repeat students should be at the £50 level.

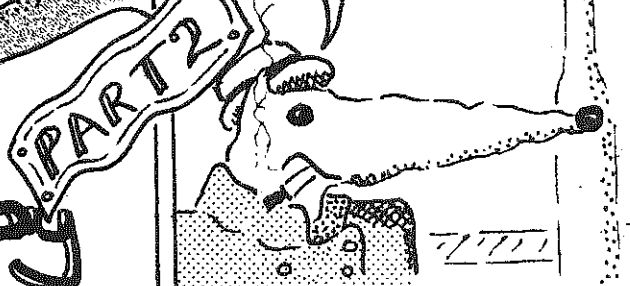

The matter has slowly come up for review and I quote from the Academic Registrar's
